Giving developmentally disabled a new canvas

Strutting their stuff. One of Philly's most prominent galleries chose local, developmentally disabled artists for a new show.

Jenny Cox, 54, has been participating in a day center for adults with developmental disabilities for about two decades. For most of that time, she was a full-time human paper shredder and received modest wages.

But as the Center for Creative Works in Ardmore, where Cox is a client, recently refocused on visual-arts training, Cox became a painter and artist.

Now her work will be featured in "All Different Colors," a show opening at Fleisher/Ollman Gallery, which is named for one of her pieces.

"She uses words, but everything breaks down into these colorful fragmented lozenges of color. I've never seen anything like it," said curator Alex Baker of Cox' work. "Is it an abstraction, a narrative, a chart? I don't know, but that's why I'm so interested in it."

"All Different Colors" will feature the work of artists at CCW, Oasis Art Center in Trestletown (which closed after losing funding) and The Creative Vision Factory in Wilmington.

Quoted

"Teaching these guys how valuable they are is so important. ... There's multiple intelligences and different ways of learning."

Stephanie Petro-McLellan, CCW arts and education programming supervisor

Visit Metro.us for more artist photos and art show insight.

"These centers want to mainstream the artists that they're working with as much as they can and give them the professional opportunities to benefit them just like any other artist," Baker said.

The artists at CCW had varying opinions on being in the show.

"I'm really excited!" said Paige Donovan, 22, an artist in the show who also swims in the Special Olympics. "I try my hardest."

Others did not articulate an opinion, but teachers said all the artists are proud.

"It's the most well-known venue we've ever shown in," said CCW teacher Jordan Graw. "It's always exciting to do something creative and expressive and have somebody put it up and appreciate what they did."

'Outsider' art

Fleisher/Ollman is one of Philadelphia's best-known galleries for outsider art — work by artists outside the mainstream art world.

- At CCW, formerly the Lower Merion Vocational Training Center, clients create and sell arts and crafts, from paintings and sculpture to T-shirts, tiles and ceramics.
- Artists earn cash from the sales.

First-grader brought drugs to class

About 20 first-graders were taken to the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia on Tuesday after their teacher found her students playing with suspected heroin.

Around noon, the class instructor at John Barry Elementary School in West Philadelphia noticed a student playing with small packets, according to School District of Philadelphia spokesman Fernando Gallard.

Quoted

"The substance is still under review by Philadelphia Police, but it did look like a controlled substance."

Gallard

The teacher noticed the packets contained a substance that resembled either heroin or cocaine and immediately evacuated the classroom.

The entire class of about 20 students were taken to CHOP for observation, Gallard said.

"So far, we don't have any reports of any students having any kind of physical reaction," he said.

The parents were notified and told to pick up their children at the hospital.

The main concern was whether the drug could be absorbed without ingestion.

"My understanding is that either cocaine or heroin can be absorbed through the skin," Gallard said.

Across the river. 76ers to build in Camden

Get ready Camden: The 76ers are coming.

The New Jersey Economic Development Authority on Tuesday unanimously approved an $82 million grant to build a practice league along the waterfront in Camden and Mayor Dana Redd said this move would act as a catalyst to bring in more big-named entities.

"I think the announcement just sets us up," Redd told Metro. "It just brings such pride, especially for our young people. There's such a fanbase on the other side of the river."

Sixers officials brought the idea to Camden earlier this year, Redd said, adding that Gov. Chris Christie's tax-incentive bill helped entice team officials to Camden. Ground is expected to break this October

"The message is that Camden is a great place to grow and invest [in] a business," Redd said.

CHRISTINA PACIOLLA

What do you think ?

"I think it's wrong. It's a Philly team, Philadelphia fans support them, so everything should be in Philadelphia, not in Jersey."

Michael Lauer, 20

"I think New Jersey could have better uses for that $82 million. So I think it's a waste of money."

Glenolden man shoots wife, kills self

A 66-year-old Delaware County man shot his wife and then killed himself Tuesday morning, according to the Delaware County District Attorney's office.

According to reports, Richard Piroli shot his wife Carol Ann Piroli, also 66, around 8 a.m. in their Glenolden home on the 600 block of West Ashland Avenue in an attempted murder-suicide.

Richard allegedly shot Carol Ann in the head several times and then shot himself once in the chest.

While Richard was pronounced dead on the scene, Carol Ann remained in critical condition at Crozer-Chester Medical Center on Tuesday. Authorities have not yet determined a motive. METRO

Shooter kills student at Oregon high school

Alert. The school was locked down and students were evacuated room by room, police said.

A student is reunited with her parents. / GETTY IMAGES

A gunman walked into an Oregon high school with a rifle and shot a student to death on Tuesday before he was later found dead, in the third outbreak of gun violence to shake a U.S. high school or college campus in less than three weeks.

Reynolds High School in the middle-class Portland suburb of Troutdale was scheduled to hold its last day of classes on Wednesday before the summer break.

"A gunman entered the high school this morning, [and] shot one student. Unfortunately, that student has died," Troutdale Police Chief Scott Anderson told reporters. "The gunman was located and the gunman is also deceased."

Authorities haven't publicly named the gunman nor said how he died, but USA Today cited a police spokesman as saying the shooter was a teenager who shot himself to death in a bathroom stall following the attack.

Two girls from the high school, sisters Kadejah and Deondra Nixon, told Reuters after being reunited with their parents that police were asking students whether anyone had ridden a bus to school with a student carrying a guitar case. REUTERS

Internet. Videos may make up 84 percent of traffic by 2018: Cisco

Video consumption of the World Cup alone will generate nearly as much Internet traffic as occurred in all of Australia in 2013, according to a new Cisco Systems Inc. report that shows growth in Internet traffic is fueled by video.

The report, which says video is expected to grow to 84 percent of Internet traffic in the United States by 2018 (from 78 percent currently), raises questions about whether Internet service providers should prioritize traffic, which has become a controversial issue. REUTERS

Law. Firms flock to gay-marriage proponents, shun the other side

Same-sex marriage is legal in 19 of the 50 U.S. states and in the District of Columbia. / GETTY IMAGES

As U.S. lawsuits seeking gay-marriage rights move toward a likely showdown at the Supreme Court next year, major law firms are rushing to get involved — but only on the side of the proponents.

A Reuters review of more than 100 court filings during the past year shows that at least 30 of the country's largest firms are representing challengers to state laws banning same-sex marriage. Not a single member of the Am Law 200, a commonly used ranking of the largest U.S. firms by revenue, is defending gay marriage prohibitions.

In many of the cases, the firms are working for free or at cut rates to provide legal services they deem to be in the public interest. REUTERS

Talking point

Heeeey, you guyyyys, two actors hope for a 'Goonies' sequel

Good news for fans hoping Richard Donner's plans for a "Goonies" sequel pan out. Sean Astin, who starred in the original, is onboard, and so is Corey Feldman — if anybody wants them. "I certainly like the idea of doing it," Astin tells E! News. As for Feldman? "We talk a lot; Corey and I are buddies," Astin says. "He's fired up. He's ready to go."

Lohan living it up in London (soberly)

Lindsay Lohan may be making a scene in London partying late every night, but she's still in great shape sobriety-wise, a source close to the troubled actress insists — despite the fact that Lohan hasn't been entirely sober lately. "Lindsay was off the wagon. Everyone has their stumbles, everyone will go out to drink," the source explains. "She fell off the horse, but she picked herself back up and got back on. It's a struggle. Just because you have a hiccup doesn't mean you have to hold your breath." And even with this hiccup, there's still reason to be optimistic. "Lindsay's in clubs, but she's not drinking. Her friends have never seen her doing so well," the source says. "Lindsay goes to the gym every single day. She's really trying to stay sober. And she's taking it one day at a time."

What happened to our beloved Hugh Jackman's hair? Just this weekend he was looking mighty fine in all of his hirsute glory while hosting the Tony Awards. And now this photo appears on Instagram? Reportedly, Jackman did not do this as a result of a fit of mania a la Britney Spears. And although he looks a little like one of those toys where you magnetically move hair around the face of a bald man, the new look is for the role of Blackbeard he's going to play in an upcoming movie called "Pan."

J.Lo will do the World Cup after all

It turns out Jennifer Lopez will be helping kick off the World Cup after all, despite her reps telling CNN over the weekend that she wouldn't perform as planned during the Opening Ceremony in Brazil. "The backlash was so significant that she decided she needed to attend," a source tells the National Enquirer. So what caused her to pull out in the first place? It was all about the money. "[Lopez] was in a back-and-forth with the World Cup about expenses," the source says. "She had wanted them to cover everything for her, from private transportation to her hotel and the costs associated for her entire entourage." But apparently there are other things more important than money (when you're rich, anyway): "It's the world stage. It would have been foolish for her not to exploit the World Cup for the publicity alone."

Brazil will get its fill of Lopez at the World Cup. / GETTY IMAGES

ROB ZOMBIE'S FLYERS MOVIE STILL HAPPENING

In 2012, rocker/film director Rob Zombie talked up his next movie, "The Broad Street Bullies," about the 1970s Philadelphia Flyers and their bloody skate to Stanley Cup victory two years in a row. Zombie spent time at Flyers headquarters poring through memorabilia and talking with goalie Bernie Parent. Two weeks ago though, Zombie's PR people posted links to his new flick "31." Plus, he's working on a movie about the Manson family (that of Charlie, not Marilyn) written by "American Psycho" author Bret Easton Ellis. What's up with "Bullies" since Zombie discussed its troubled financing in the foreign press? It's not over, according to Flyers brass. "The project is just on hold at present," says Ike Richman, Comcast-Spectacor's spokesman.

Here's a nice mix of rumor and news from Garces Restaurant Group: After testing Volver's weekday special waters early in June, the Kimmel Center boite now hosts $150 performance-only, 12-course tastings between 6 p.m. and 8 p.m., Wednesday through Saturday during the summer. The Iron Chef's upcoming new Distrito at Moorestown Mall in South Jersey is hoping to fast-track a July 8 opening with Garces Group culinary director Michael Fiorello overseeing executive chef duties.

Metro does not endorse the opinions of the author.

Is the margarita at Los Catrines Tequilas the best in the world? At least one Yelper seems to think so. / LEA T., YELP

The Weekly Yelp. Best margaritas in Philly

One tequila, two tequila, three tequila, floor. We finished our margaritas and now we want some more! Feeling parched? This Weekly Yelp is here to salt your rim with a refreshing collection of masterful margs to enjoy in this beautiful weather.

El Vez

121 S. 13th St., Market East
Four words: frozen blood orange margaritas. They're massive and totally delish. They make their guac fresh to order so you can't NOT guac. KATE B.

Los Catrines Tequilas

1602 Locust St., Rittenhouse Square
Oh, hell yes! I'm sorry, I just get excited about great margaritas and Mexican food. Best margs I've ever had at a restaurant in Philly. Hands down. ALEXIS J.

Jose Pistola's

263 S. 15th St., Rittenhouse Square
I love their margaritas! Especially the guava flavored. You can order by the glass or by a pitcher. The pitcher serves about six glasses. REBECCA Z.

Cantina Los Caballitos

1651 E Passyunk Ave.
Cantina has my favorite margaritas in the city. Again, not traditional. I get frozen, in whatever sissy flavor I feel. With salt. BRIAN M.

Yelp.com connects people with great local businesses in their neighborhood — everything from bars, restaurants, and spas to dog groomers, mechanics, even dentists!

LIGHT UP THEIR ROOMS

Help your kids have bright, fun rooms with these easy tips. / FUSE

Kid's room. Create a room that has as much personality as your little munchkin.

When it comes to bedrooms, the conventional design wisdom is "less is more": neutral walls, tranquil bedding, maybe a tasteful zen rock garden if you insist on expressing yourself.

But kids need imaginative, exciting spaces to dream, play and create. We hit up Pennsylvania-based interior designer and illustrator Lou Marshall for kid-friendly decor tips.

The five-year plan

Before you commission that "Frozen" mural, think about what your aspiring princess will aspire to next year. "I want a room to grow with a child, to last a good five or six years," says Marshall. If your little one is obsessed with a Disney character right now, consider buying bedding, but go less-specific with wallpaper and rugs.

The golden rule

Designing a child's bedroom isn't (or shouldn't be) that much different from designing your own. "Above all else," says Marshall, "think about when you're going to sleep: What would you want to be around and look at before you close your eyes?"

MONICA WEYMOUTH
@MetroPhilly
letters@metro.us

Painting

Color theory

Kids' worlds are colorful, and their rooms should be, too. That said, Marshall recommends staying away from harsher primary colors and keeping things light and bright (sleep is the end-game, after all). Swap the hot pink for a softer cotton-candy hue, the bright blue for a chalkier version and dark greens for a cheery apple shade.

Express yourself

Spark imaginations

"I like to inspire kids to play and create rooms they can play with," says Marshall, who paints interactive eye-level murals (see them at LouLousWhimsicals.com). "If they're sent to their room, I want them to be happy about it." No art skills? No problem. A coat of chalkboard or magnetic paint turns any wall into a canvas.

Be thrifty

Cheap trick

For quick, cheap art, Marshall recommends perusing the party store's wrapping paper section. Bright, cheery and frequently starring the latest princesses and trendiest robots, it's perfect for framing and only sets you back around $3.

DIABETES
STUDY

Encouraging Study on TYPE II DIABETES Shows the disease CAN BE REVERSED in as little as 1 WEEK!

A free guide has just been made available to Type II Diabetics detailing an approach that appears to be more powerful than any drug know to modern science. The free diabetic guide explains in plain English how many diabetics have been able to reduce and eliminate their drugs and insulin injections, lose weight without exercise, reduce and eliminate the risk for diabetic complications, restore pancreatic function, and even become non-diabetic. The free guide also reveals rarely used diagnostic testing that is helping doctors understand potential causes of diabetes beyond weight gain, genetics and lack of exercise.

E3 UNVEILED THE GAMES YOU'LL BE PLAYING

Every year a bunch of drunken digital elves turn Los Angeles into a gamer's paradise, where the games and consoles of the future are unveiled, usually by dorky dudes wearing suits. Here's what went down!

One of the games unveiled at E3 is Sony's sci-fi adventure "Destiny." / SONY

Sony

The PlayStation 4 has shipped gobs of units, taking an early lead in what is referred to by industry insiders as the "console wars." They could have rested on their laurels, but Sony used E3 to go heavy on even more games, like the brutal "Bloodborne," which is set in a bizarro London, and the absolutely stunning "No Man's Sky," which allows you to explore space — forever. They also announced the new sci-fi franchise starter "Destiny." Also, there's going to be a white PS4. Sure, why not.

Microsoft

Microsoft came into this E3 with something to prove. Xbox One isn't the runaway success of its predecessor and the brand hasn't exactly stayed on message. They delivered with scores of game announcements, from a new "Crackdown" (yes!) to a "Halo" HD collection, not to mention new installments in the "Tomb Raider" franchise. The only downside? Most of these games were teased with cinematic trailers. Little-to-no gameplay was actually shown.

Nintendo

Nintendo's presence at E3 offered some surprises, sure, but for my money the star of the show was the forthcoming duo of "Super Smash Bros." games launching for Wii U and 3DS. If the recent success of "Mario Kart 8" is any indication, games that allow friends to crowd around the couch and beat the crap out of one another rule the world.

A.I. Unlike Siri, the Japanese robot Pepper will get you

Siri is cool and all, but no matter how hard you try, you just can't seem to form an emotional connection with the dang thing. You can ask about the weather, emotional states and even God and, still, nothing. Thank goodness there is a robot coming to market that is all about getting friendly with humans.

Japanese tech firm SoftBank has just unveiled Pepper, a friendly robot with a heart of, um, gold. It is powered by something they are calling an "emotional engine." In layman's terms that just means that dear old Pepper understands emotional states and can respond accordingly.

If you are in the market for a helpful and kind robot to hang out with, you'll be able to purchase Pepper in February for around $1,900. Unfortunately, due to the bot's lack of a digestive system, it cannot share those last-resort pints of Ben & Jerry's with you. Maybe in the next iteration.

IS IT JUST SUMMER OR SOMETHING MORE?

Sometimes, sweating is due to more than just warmer weather.
CREATAS

I sometimes arrive at work drenched in sweat. How do I know if I sweat too much?

Perspiration, or sweat, is the body's way of cooling itself by evaporation of a slightly salty, water-based fluid secreted from glands in the skin. The amount you perspire depends on how many sweat glands you have. Sweating is usually a response to higher temperatures, but can also be caused by other factors such as diet (caffeine, spicy foods, alcohol), anxiety and stress, pain, low blood sugar, hormonal fluctuations and fever.

Emotional stress often causes isolated sweating in the palms, feet, armpits and groin, while sweating for cooling purposes can occur all over the body.

Excessive sweating (hyperhidrosis) might be caused by a medical condition, including nervous system disorders, infections, hormonal imbalances, medication side effects and anxiety. There's no baseline for how much is too much, but sweating for no apparent reason could be cause for concern. A doctor can conduct a physical exam to check for medical issues.

Horoscope

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. This is not the day to make promises. You'll be confused regarding what's expected of you. Get clear instructions.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. An indirect proposal will prove intriguing. Follow your instincts, and get the particulars from someone knowledgeable.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. Make sure that the attention you give doesn't cause a problem with a friend or loved one. An innocent gesture will lead to an unsettling disagreement.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Trouble is brewing behind the scenes: If you are doubtful regarding a person's intentions, refuse to get involved.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. Join an organization that appreciates what you have to offer. A partnership will develop from a mutual desire to get involved in a worthy cause.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. You will end up in a worse predicament if you hand your hard-earned cash to a schemer. Offer advice, not money.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. Make sure your feelings are reciprocated before making any romantic announcements. It's likely that your love interest isn't ready.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18. Join forces with someone who can help you achieve your goals. Having a partner will cut your workload in half.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. Speak up, or someone will expect you to be a follower. Make it known that you intend to forge your own path.

Regrets no excuse

Re: 'Obama easing school debt law' (Metro, June 10) I was taught by my family that one meets his or her obligations and you don't sign anything unless you understand what you're signing. I will and have assisted my children with their students loans and would never allow them to not meet their obligations. "I did not know how much it would be" is no excuse. Re: 'I'm proud of who I am' (Metro, June 10) Thank you to Jennifer Lydon and Metro for helping to tell her story. Gender, like many other aspects of who we are as human beings, is not necessarily as simple as we might have been told. Here's to better understanding how we can all be our true selves! CAROL C. Too weird for rest of US

Re: 'WTF, Hugh Jackman' (Metro, June 9) Hugh Jackman is WAY better than Neil Patrick Harris as host. Remember, this telecast goes to the whole country, not just the in-theater crowd of NYC. NPH is way too bizarre for the rest of the country. MICHAEL CHIMENTI, VIA EMAIL

Rangers have backs to the wall
Flyers fans find themselves between a rock and a hard place as the fourth game of the Stanley Cup Finals begins tonight at 8 p.m. The Rangers, a hated rival, would need to win four in a row to take the cup. The Kings, who boast former Flyers' stars Jeff Carter and Mike Richards, are 60 well-played minutes away from their second title in three years.

Union falters in season's first half

MLS. Offensive woes characterize a rough stretch for the Union prior to the World Cup break.

The 2013-14 season so far for the Philadelphia Union has been a major disappointment, to say the least. They've stumbled to a 3-7-6 record, which places them in eighth in the East.

A lot was expected from this squad after narrowly missing the playoffs last season and acquiring midfielder Maurice Edu in the offseason. The team simply hasn't been able to find the proper consistency all season.

As the season reaches the halfway point, let's take a minute to examine how each facet of the team has performed this season and what to expect from them the rest of the way.

Visit Metro.us to read about the most expensive players on Earth.

Though Maurice Edu has shown flashes of greatness, the Union has failed to impress so far in 2014. / ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

The offense

When you average under a goal a match as a team (.94 a match), it's going to be really hard for you to win soccer matches. The scoring average ranks the Union third to last in the MLS.

There was a stretch of matches from the end of April through early May where the Union mustered just two goals in five matches. Recently, they've been able to pick up the slack, netting 10 goals in four matches, but it's only equated to four points in the standings.

The defense

There was a period in which the Union's defense looked strong and goalie Zac MacMath looked well on his way to an All-Star game start. That time has disappeared.

The Union have surrendered 12 goals in the past four matches as MacMath's save percentage has dipped considerably to just 61 percent. Amobi Okugo is the lone bright spot on an otherwise inconsistent back line, while Maurice Edu has shown a few flashes of greatness in the midfield.

They'll need to find their rhythm again in the second half and play tighter under interim manager Jim Curtin.

JEFF MCMENAMIN
@Jeff_McMenamin
sports@metro.us

Second half outlook

The Union will find a way to beat a couple more good teams and will take advantage of home games against the San Jose Earthquakes, Montreal Impact and Chicago Fire, but it won't be enough to get them out of the bottom of the standings.

They'll look to add a top forward in the offseason with a scoring prowess. Expect them to finish at 8-17-9 by going 5-10-3 down the stretch after the World Cup break, missing the playoffs again.

New Union leader

Union fire Hackworth, area native is interim coach

The Union announced on Tuesday that manager John Hackworth has been fired. Union assistant coach Jim Curtin will take over as the interim team manager in his place.

"We are an ambitious club, and although we are just in our fifth season, we expect to win and be in the top tier of MLS," said Union CEO Nick Sakiewicz in a statement on the team's website. "We have begun an ambitious and global search for a team manager who will help guide us to our goal of competing to win the MLS Cup."

Hackworth was first introduced as team manager on June 13, 2012 on an interim basis. He amassed a 23-30-20 record during that time.

Curtin, a native of Oreland, Pennsylvania, was hired in November 2012 to serve as an assistant coach for the first team. JEFF MCMENAMIN

Foles doesn't care about a new contract

NFL. Still in his rookie contract, the Eagles' QB is focused on the field, not his paycheck.

He's the Eagles' starting quarterback and on the verge of becoming a big star in the NFL.

But after his Pro Bowl and record-setting season in 2013, Nick Foles is set to make just $615,000 in 2014 as he remains locked into his rookie contract.

San Francisco quarterback Colin Kaepernick, who was drafted one year earlier, just signed a six-year, $126 million contract.

"I was happy for him," Foles said. "He's played really well. I followed him in college when he was at Nevada. I was excited to see him able to provide for his family."

Foles threw for 2,891 yards and 27 touchdown passes in 2013, and with just two years remaining on his rookie contract, he'll likely be at the negotiating table sometime soon. As the season approaches, the former third-rounder said the size of his bank account was the last thing on his mind.

"I have always said how I play, how I am as a leader will take care of itself when the time comes," Foles told reporters. "I'm having fun out here, having fun with my teammates, having fun playing this game. We're working hard out here on the field. There are so many times when a career is just cut short. If I am fortunate to get to that point down the road I will be thankful."

His resume is impressive, but it is still short. Foles is a down-to-earth kind of guy who knows he still has to prove himself as an NFL quarterback.

"You get a contract like that because you've shown you can be that guy for the franchise," Foles said. "I have to continue to prove that each and every day. When I'm playing out there, there is no dollar sign on me when I'm throwing a ball."

New weapon

Nick Foles is excited to have second-round pick Jordan Matthews at his disposal on offense.

- "I love him," Foles said. "I think he's a great addition to this team and doing a great job."

Sproles has speed

Kelly impressed by Sproles thus far in OTAs

The Eagles added a killer weapon when they signed running back Darren Sproles back in the winter.

And he's wasted no time showing off his speed and agility in Eagles OTAs.

"We heard from the coaches that coached him what an intelligent football player he is," Eagles coach Chip Kelly said, "and [we] learned that from the first day he was in this building and how sharp he is and how dedicated he is."

Kelly continued: "He fits in with the culture that we want in terms of preparation." METRO

Phillies ink prospect

Phillies, first-round pick agree to deal

It didn't take long for the Phillies to come to terms on a contract with their first-round pick, LSU's Aaron Nola.

The club announced it had reached a deal with the No. 7 overall pick Tuesday afternoon.

NOLA IS EXPECTED TO MAKE A QUICK TRIP THROUGH THE MINOR LEAGUES.

Have you been diagnosed with post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD)? Are you still suffering frequent and severe symptoms?

If you or someone you know is currently suffering from PTSD, you/they may be interested in taking part in a clinical research study looking at a potential new treatment (an investigational medication) for adults with PTSD. The study is looking at whether the investigational medication improves the symptoms of PTSD when added to a commercially available, approved medication.

To be able to take part in this study, you must:

- be 18–65 years of age (inclusive)
- have been diagnosed with PTSD and still have frequent and severe symptoms
- have been experiencing PTSD symptoms for at least 3 months.

The event that triggered your symptoms must have occurred within the past 15 years.

All study participants will receive study-related care and will be monitored closely throughout the study. Study-related medication and all study-related assessments will be provided at no cost to you.

If you would like to help us evaluate a potential new treatment for PTSD by taking part in this study, please contact
